Re: GN Docket No. 09-191

Dear Chairman Genachowski and Commissioners:

Last year, when the F.C.C. announced that it was going to begin debate on so-called "net neutrality" rules, we wrote to express our concerns about this issue.

As an organization, we continue to oppose any rules or regulations that will stifle investment in broadband access for the business community. The current competitive marketplace has resulted in both innovation and competitive prices for our business members and the companies they represent.

Instead, we believe that federal policy should be focused on fostering additional investment in increased access to broadband service for the business community. Unneeded rules and regulations, especially in the hyper competitive wireless business, would be counterproductive in this regard.

A recommendation has been made by the F.C.C. to establish a "Technical Advisory Process." We applaud that approach of industry experts offering advice to work out technical issues before the problem becomes a violation of the F.C.C.'s current four standards.

Thank you in advance for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Phillip L. Parker
